

ABSTRACT

An apparatus is used for providing programming. The apparatus comprises a display device having a clip for attaching the display device to another object and a main body for receiving the programming which is displayed on the display device. The main body either has a surface so that the main body sits on the object or a further object, or the main body has a hook for attaching the main body to one of the object or the further object. The apparatus further comprises a speaker unit which has a hinge portion. The speaker unit also have a hook for attaching the speaker unit to one of said further object, said another object and an additional object.